Of the four scholarships, two were awarded on a need-basis, which is determined according to factors such as combined income, mortgage payment, number of other children attending college, unusual medical circumstances and other related circumstances. Two merit/academic-based scholarships were awarded according to academic record, essay, recommendations and extra-curricular activities.

“It is our pleasure to offer these scholarships to students,” said Loren E. Dickinson, President and CEO of Nutmeg State Federal Credit Union. “The recipients we chose this year are most deserving of this recognition.”
